Subject: Microsoft is not a monopoly

Microsoft is not a monopoly , the court is wrong this seems more like a mafia shakedown for money than justice served , competitors such as aol /time Warner , oracle , apple ,sun micro seem to be more at the heart of this matter . each of the aforementioned companies have billions at there disposal to innovate operating or any other products but they choose instead to use the courts to keep Microsoft from creating great products instead of competing fairly on the marketplace , bill gates started with nothing but a vision , competing products available in the market today include Linux , Solaris, the many flavors of UNIX, apple , be, dos, caldera, Cobol, ect...consumers already have a choice as the people who own apple computers can attest , a apple computer by definition is a personal computer , the same as one with windows , no difference.

real networks media player does more harm to the consumer than win media player i.e forcing you to use real and making it a pain if you don't whereas Microsoft media player only load's when asked , when I loaded Broderbund print shop aol loaded without asking the icon on the screen warned me that by deleting it I would not unload the program to go to add/ remove programs where it could not be found a ploy to keep the average computer user in confusion to fool them into loading there program. shame on the justice dept. the only thing that has come out of this is less innovation and when the settlement is over the consumer will pay more like the tobacco settlement . this shake down by the government and Microsoft's competitors has caused the consumer's irreparable harm already please drop this case immediately if you really want to help the consumer as this consumer has had to much help alreadyGet more from the Web.
